City Hears Plans for Tourist Trade Revival on No. 67

PAVING COMPLETE

Visitors Continue to Arkadelphia—River Meeting Tuesday Night

F. O. Mackey of Douglas, Arizona, president of the Broadway of America association, paid Hope a flying visit late Monday afternoon and was assured by a local group gathered at the New Capital hotel that business men of this city would support the association in its effort to restore tourist traffic in this all-year-round transcontinental highway.

Mr. Mackey, who is making a tour of the Broadway in advance of the association convention next month in Dallas, Texas, was accompanied here by Bob Jones of Hot Springs, Broadway vice-president; E. L. Howlett, president of the Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce; and H. W. Stanley, chamber of Commerce. Mr. Stanley will be remembered by Hope merchants for his two series of store-management lectures presented here under the auspices of Hope Star.

The Hope meeting was presided over by Terrell Cornelius, Broadway director for Arkansas, who introduced Mr. Mackey.

Headed for Arkadelphia and Hot Springs, where they were to spend the night, the party was told of the completion of No. 67 and No. 70 of the last unopened links in the Broadway from New York City to San Diego, Calif.

From Hope the visitors drove to Arkadelphia for a dinner meeting Monday night before continuing to Hot Springs.

At Arkadelphia plans were announced by Clary county citizens for a rally there Tuesday night at 7 o'clock, attended by U. S. army engineers, looking to the extension of navigation on the Ouachita river from Camden to Arkadelphia.

Invitations were relayed to Hope to have a delegation present, using the value of river navigation in bringing about a competitive freight rate.

6-Bale Exemption Is Not Permitted

Bankhead Cotton Control Bill Nearing Completion in Conference

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An agreement was reached in conference Monday to eliminate the provision of the Bankhead cotton bill which would allow each farmer to market six bales tax free.

This clause was inserted on the senate side and supporters of the bill said that made its central aim—to limit the amount of cotton marketed from this year's crop to 10,000,000 bales—impossible.

The conference Monday was the first since the house refused to accept the series of amendments written in by the senate and the decision to strike out the six-bale exemption, it was said, soon was reached.

It was indicated also that the amendment limiting the life of the bill to one year might be detained. The house bill would have made the bill applicable for two years and the president would have the authority to extend it for another year if the cotton growers wanted it.

Spanish Fascists' Leader Is Shot At

But Assassins in Madrid Miss Their Aim—deRiviera Lives

MADRID, Spain.—(AP)—Assassins Tuesday missed in an attempt to kill Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera, son of the former dictator of Spain, and himself leader of the Fascist movement.

It turns out to be pretty tame stuff. The people actually present at that private dinner last September were underlings in federal departments.

Three of the five Dr. Wirt named are women. No woman since Helen of Troy has begun a war, and no woman has started a revolution since Marie Antoinette asked why if the peasants had no bread they didn't eat cake.

The nearest Dr. Wirt got to the president's "Brain Trust" was when he heard somebody talk who stood behind the door when Prof. Rexford B. Tugwell talked some other time some other place.

Professor Tugwell, assistant Secretary of Agriculture, replies that this secrecy is amazing—his "revolutionary" remarks were actually made at a public meeting in Philadelphia in 1931. So the revolution is a "bust."

Dr. Wirt may be lacking in humor. He may be guilty of attaching too much importance to the "shop talk" of eager young men and women who, after the fashion of students, sit around coffee shops and talk idly about revolution.

But Dr. Wirt is hardly an enemy of President Roosevelt. As a matter of fact he joined Frank Vanderlip, one of the president's financial advisors, in the Committee of the Nation, advocated a reduction of the gold content of the dollar, and other fiscal policies which Mr. Roosevelt has since taken up.

Wirt and Vanderlip are with the president on his gold policy, where, for instance, Dr. Sprague is opposed to it. As complicated as this, times are.

Wirt's revolution scare is simply a flash in the pan. But though it does no damage it sheds a significant light on corners of public policy which remain dark in the public mind.

A great many conservative American citizens may feel at times that Mr. Roosevelt has surrounded himself with some dangerous young radicals.

These conservatives may feel the future of the nation rests to a dangerous degree on the continued courage and health of one man—the president.

That's close to a dictatorship. But I don't see how anyone could expect President Roosevelt to move other than in a radical direction. America had had, up to Roosevelt's inauguration, twelve years of intensely "conservative" rule—ending in economic disaster.

I quote the word "conservative," for the reason that this rule now stands revealed as anything but truly conservative. It would have paid America billions of dollars to have been radical at times, during those "conservative" years.

I never will forget that in any imaginable clash between Mr. Roosevelt and the more partisan Democratic leaders the nation is apt to follow the president and tell the party Democrats to jump in the ocean. For as early in the "conservative" era as 1924 the Democratic party sold out to the House of Morgan, nominating for president John W. Davis at a time when the only other choice was Calvin Coolidge. I recollect that this was the only time this writer ever bolted the Democratic party in a national election, voting for the senior La Follette.

America may be vaguely alarmed at stories like this that Dr. Wirt has dug up—but not greatly alarmed. America is honest enough to admit that what looks radical in President Roosevelt's policy is merely strange after so many years of Republican ascendancy and Democratic acquiescence.

Fish Story "Libel" Says F.D.

President Roosevelt may have taken his yacht trip to rest from "official" business, but that didn't keep him from suggesting an immediate investigation involving—of all persons—his son Elliott. It seems that Elliott returned to Miami after a flying visit to the Nourmahal and reported that his father's catch was below standard. And that, according to the President, is "gross libel"—hence an "inquiry." Elliott (right) is shown with his brother James before taking off from Miami for the visit.

Arthur A. Gibson Is Struck by Auto

Hope Man Injured Tuesday on Highway Near McCaskill

Arthur A. Gibson was suffering from injuries Tuesday when knocked down by an automobile near McCaskill.

He was brought to Josephine hospital here with a broken right leg, a severe scalp wound and lacerations on the right side of the face.

The accident occurred about one mile north of McCaskill. The car that struck Gibson was driven by J. J. Lively, riding with Mr. Lively was Bob Rowland, both McCaskill farmers.

According to the story told by Mr. Gibson in the operating room of the hospital to a representative of The Star, he and Oscar Minnus, farmer, were walking toward McCaskill when the Lively car approached from the rear.

Another car had just passed. Unaware that the Lively car was behind, Mr. Gibson left his companion who was on the right side of the road and started toward the left, walking into the path of the car.

Mr. Lively said he swerved his automobile to the left as much as possible in an effort to avoid striking Mr. Gibson, however the latter was knocked to the gravel when a fender struck him.

Mr. Gibson was picked up and brought to the hospital in the Lively automobile.

Legislature Acts Quickly; Session to Close Wednesday

House Passes 3 Bills, Senate 6—Vote Virtually Unanimous

REJECT EXTENSION

Move by Stanfield Certain to Be Defeated by Lower House

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—A sine die adjournment of the third special legislative session Wednesday seemed assured as both houses Tuesday cleared their calendars of all business that could be transacted.

The house passed three bills and the senate six—covering all five subjects in Governor Futrell's call.

Each house must call the roll Wednesday on the other's business, and if no hitch occurs they are expected to adjourn and set something of a legislative record for a short session.

Stanfield, of Garland county, said he would present a resolution to extend the session 15 days, but it was regarded as certain that the lower granch would reject any attempt to stay in session.

The house adjourned at noon Tuesday until 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, and the senate to 9 o'clock.

Both the senate and the house measures received practically unanimous approval.

Governor's Message LITTLE ROCK—The third special session of the Forty-ninth General Assembly got under way with few preliminaries, and after the joint session at which Governor Futrell emphasized the need of legislation to assure completion of the State Hospital project, four bills were introduced in the house and eight in the senate.

A hearty reception was given the chief executive when he appeared in the house chamber shortly after the two branches of the legislature met jointly. All members and visitors stood as the governor approached the speaker's stand.

Governor's Address The text of the governor's address follows:

"The primary purpose of the first special session was to meet federal requirements for relief to home owners to refinance farm mortgages, and procure loans from the Public Works Administration in behalf of municipalities, schools and state agencies. The legislature met all requirements then made by the federal government. The second special session was to pass a refunding law.

"Whether the venture near Benton in behalf of our issue was a mistake need not now be discussed. In furtherance of this program, the state has spent more than $1,000,000 in the purchase of land and the construction of buildings. The state has near Benton 3,100 acres of land and 13 buildings, which, when ready for use, will accommodate 800 patients or may be 1,000.

"The inadequate housing facilities for those unfortunate people for many years has produced conditions which civilization should not tolerate. In the situation now acute, at night more than 1,000 patients—to be exact 1,285—are lain together like sweet potatoes in a plant bed. Many of these are without any sense of propriety or cleanliness. They are masses of living clay bereft of mentality. They are up through the night tramping on each other except as restrained by attendants. If you are not convinced of the need for more room, visit them tonight when a picture will be thrown upon the screen of your mind, which time will not efface. The conditions would tend to make a well person sick, and to make a sick person sicker. More room is the remedy. There is no substitute. Three hundred thousand dollars will be required to make the buildings at Benton available for use. The government not only offers you this money, but enough more to construct a second unit of buildings, which means 26 buildings in all. This done arrangements for caring for our unfortunate will have been provided for the next 50 years.

Money From U. S. "The money to complete the program can be obtained from the federal government, if we comply with its terms. It cannot be obtained elsewhere. Through Judge Hill, I request the government to fix its terms. It has done so in the form of a bill. The terms are fair and reasonable. As governor, I accept them. If you reject this opportunity, to pass, you thereby decree indefinitely a continuance of the present inhuman conditions; or adopt the alternative of op-

Brashear Jury Is Again Deadlocked

Conviction in Bank Robbery Fails for Second Time

A mistrial resulted late Monday afternoon in the case of June Brashear, or trial in circuit court at Washington in connection with the $25,000 robbery of First National Bank here last year.

It was the second jury that has failed to reach a verdict in trying Brashear. The earlier trial was in January.

Testimony in the case was completed at noon Monday. After deliberating three hours the jury stood 6 to 6. If convicted the penalty would have been not less than three years nor more than 21 in the penitentiary, it was said.

What further action will be taken against Brashear was not determined Tuesday. He was back in his jail cell where he has been held prisoner since May 11 of last year.

Brashear pleaded not guilty to the bank robbery charge. As an alibi he told the court he was living in Oklahoma at the time of the hold up here which was led by Charles Chapman and Charles Williams.

The robbery case was the only trial held Monday. Several defendants pleaded guilty and were sentenced.

Court adjourned until Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

U. S. Envoy Dies at Banquet in Ireland

W. W. McDowell Stricken as He Replies to Irish Greetings

DOUBLIN, Ireland—(AP)—William Wallace McDowell, 67, who became the American minister to the Irish Free State two weeks ago, died suddenly of a heart attack Monday night during a banquet given in his honor by Irish executives.

McDowell, a native of Tennessee and a political force in his adopted state, Montana, was replying to congratulatory speeches when he collapsed.

He had appeared to be in excellent health and cheerful spirits. His first sentences were given in his normal voice and he was paying tribute to the achievements of the Irish and Americans when, without warning, he faltered and dropped between the chair and table.

President Eamon de Valera, sitting at his left, and others seated at his table sprang to their feet in an attempt to help Mr. McDowell, but he was dead. Artificial respiration was tried and medical aid was summoned, but physicians could only confirm that life was extinct.

President de Valera, a close personal friend of the minister, was greatly shocked and distressed by the tragedy. The banquet had been a pleasant, light-hearted affair, and everybody was in high spirits.

McDowell presented his credentials on March 27 to the president and not to King George's representative, as has been customary. This break with tradition, his avowed love for Ireland, and his cheerfulness had made him extremely popular during his short stay.

The body was taken to the American legation where, it was said, an autopsy will be performed.

The banquet was attended only by the diplomatic corps and Irish statesmen. Newspapers were not represented. Richard Washburn Child, representative of President Roosevelt, accompanied the minister.

The death occurred at 11 p. m. just a few minutes before Mr. McDowell, seated between Mr. de Valera and the papal nuncio, had shared in the lively conversation and had listened to eulogistic and congratulatory speeches.

Fire Sunday morning considerably damaged the Sunday school building at the rear of First Baptist church. Third and Main streets, the blaze was discovered about 8:30. No estimate of the loss was obtained. Firemen said it was the first alarm since March 12. Origin of the fire was not learned.

Says 5 Assistants in U.S. Bureau Are Planning a Revolt

Describes "Treasonable Remarks From Officials at Private Dinner"

TUGWELL IS NAMED

"Scrap Constitution" Wirt Hears From Second-Hand Source

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Dr. William A. Wirt testified Tuesday in the house investigation of his allegations that some of the "Brain Trust" are plotting to bring about a Communist revolt in the United States.

Wirt named three women and two men connected with the administration and newspaper men as having been present with him at a dinner in September when he heard assertions of a plot to bring about a Communist government.

He Names Six While hundreds crowded the huge caucus room to hear, he named the following:

Robert Bruere, chairman of the Federal Code Advisory Committee; the title David C. Coyle, of the Public Works Administration.

Hildegard Kneeland and Mary Taylor, Department of Agriculture economists.

Alice Barrows of the Education Bureau, Department of the Interior. Lawrence Todd, representative here of the Soviet news agency, Tass.

The dinner, Wirt said, was held in the Barrows home in nearby Virginia.

Wirt quoted Rexford G. Tugwell, assistant Secretary of Agriculture as having said he would have closed the grain and stock exchanges if he had the power, and that he termed the apparent recovery movement "a speculative spree."

Wirt added that Miss Kneeland said Tugwell had said:

"To plan nationally we must change once and for all our statutes and constitution."

Represented by former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, as counsel, Wirt was stopped again and again by members of the committee as he sought to discuss the administration program.

After Wirt named those at the dinner, Committee Chairman Bulwinkle asked:

"Do I understand them to be the Brain Trusters you had reference to?"

"No," Wirt replied, "I said in my statement 'Brain Trusters and their satellites', adding that he considered those named to be satellites.

Quality Cotton Is Needed by Nation

Tom Kinser Points to Foreign Long Staple Paying $35 Tariff

As voluntary acreage reduction becomes effective, together with the Bankhead bill which would allow only 10 million bales to be ginned, it behooves the cotton farmer to produce quality cotton from highly pedigreed seed of known quality, according to Tom Kinser, local agent for Coker's pedigreed cotton seed. The majority of the cotton produced in Hempstead county the last few years is of a variety that has put the market on a low basis with Texas cotton, according to Mr. Kinser. Hempstead county in former years enjoyed the reputation of producing the quality cotton of the entire South. "Now is the time to regain our reputation by planting highly productive pedigreed seed of known quality," Mr. Kinser says. "We have the soil to produce quality cotton that will give our farmers several dollars more per bale. A large quantity of Egyptian and Peruvian cotton must be imported to supply the deficiency in production of longer length cotton in the United States. Every inch of such cotton brought into the United States over a 7-cent-per-pound tariff, or $35 per bale."

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The real sign of the doctor of today, instead of the rod and serpent of a previous period, is the stethoscope. This little machine was brought into medical practice around 1800. The story of its development is one of the romances of medical practice. A French physician named Rene Laennec was treating a young aristocratic woman. Doctors used to listen to the heart beat and to the sounds within the chest by putting their ears down on the skin. However, in the charity hospitals many of the patients were infested with insects, and it was not very pleasant for the doctors to carry on these investigations. Furthermore, the modesty of an earlier generation and the relationships of the average person to the aristocracy made this much too intimate a performance for the physician to perform on a person of superior class. Doctor Laennec was anxious to listen to the heart beats of the young woman and found himself in a dilemma. He went out to walk in the gardens of the Louvre. There he saw two boys playing with a log. One boy listened at one end and the other boy scratched or tapped at the other end. Laennec said, "What are you doing?" The boys explained that the sound passed down the log. Laennec went back to his room in the hospital, rolled up a sheet of cardboard, and walked into the patient's room. He put one end of the tube on his patient's chest and his ear at the other end of the tube. He could hear the heart beats distinctly. The first stethoscope was called, because of its shape, a baten. Gradually developments were made in this device so that today the familiar stethoscope has a bell for collecting the sound and two rubber tubes that pass to ear pieces which fit into the ears of the physician. A new discovery is the application of radio amplification to the stethoscope idea. Now it is possible to step up the sound that comes through the stethoscope. Heart murmurs in disease of the heart valves and changes in the sounds of the air in the lungs, as occur in bronchitis, pneumonia, and tuberculosis, can be made audible even to whole auditoriums of physicians at one time. Arrangements can be made to send these amplified sounds over telegraph wires and then to reamplify them in auditoriums hundreds of miles away. Furthermore, the changes in the heart sounds in various types of heart disease, and the changes in the sounds of the lungs, as they occur in tuberculosis, pneumonia, abscess of the lung, and other conditions, have been recorded on wax records. Then these records are used in medical schools to teach students the significance of these sounds in relationship to disease.

Through the stethoscope, the doctor hears your heart beat.

Legion's Member Drive This Week

Tribute to Adjutant Sessions From April 10 to 17

As a tribute to an outstanding Arkansas legionnaire the week of April 10 to 17 is being observed as Sisson Membership Week and all ex-service men who have not done so are being urged to pay their dues in the American Legion, and help the state department reach its quota for 1934.

R. W. Sisson, state adjutant of the Legion, has been connected with the department of Arkansas in some capacity for the past 12 years and is probably one of the best known Legionnaires in Arkansas. For several weeks "Bob" has been suffering with a severe illness and because of the esteem in which he is held by ex-service men in all parts of the state it was decided to dedicate this week to him.

Arkansas ranks high among the other states in Legion membership and posts over the state that have not reached their quotas for this year are urged to make a special effort to do so this week. The first interest of the Legion is to the disabled of the World war and the recent passing of the independent office bill over the president's veto, restoring compensation to service-connected cases, proves the justification of the Legion's fight for those who suffered mental and physical disabilities in defense of their country. The Legion has been criticized for its fight for the disabled but it feels that it has no apologies to make for doing so, and needs the help of every ex-service man who has an honorable discharge.

The Gifts That Endure

Carve your name high over shifting sand,
Where the steadfast rock defies decay—
All you can hold in your cold, dead hand,
Is what you have given away.
Build you a pyramid skyward and stand
Gazed at by millions, cultured they say—
All you can hold in your cold, dead hand,
Is what you have given away.
Count your wide conquests of sea and of land,
Heap up the gold, and hoard as you may—
All you can hold in your cold, dead hand,
Is what you have given away.

the hands of a new and independent commission as proposed by Richard Whitney, president of the exchange. In addition, the committee was ready to scrap its specific minimum margin requirements and leave their determination entirely to the new commission. This, too, was proposed by Whitney.

Friends of the original bill looked to the house, as well as to their own effort to nudge the senate floor, to bring about enactment of the measure more nearly as it stood when President Roosevelt said "none of us can afford to have it weakened" in any particular.

House leaders believed that branch of the congress would stick to the plan of having the Reserve Board administer the margin provisions and the Trade Commission the other sections of the bill.

They thought, too, that the measure would contain a statement of congressional purpose and policy such as was contained in a section eliminated Monday by the senate committee. This was intended to build a constitutional prop under the measure in case its validity was tested in the courts.

Chairman Rayburn of the house commerce committee, which has the bill in charge, speaking for himself, said Monday he thought the section in question should stay in the bill and that he was opposed to the creation of a separate administrative authority.

In connection with the impending senate committee action on the margin section, the house committee as a whole voted last week to instruct a sub-committee to revise the bill and include in it specifically determined minimum margin requirements.

This did not mean the bill's original provisions stipulating a 60 percent cash margin, with some more moderate alternatives would be retained. The sub-committee was told to set the figure. The sub-committee met Monday for a general discussion of the measure with Governor Eugene Black of the Reserve Board.

How Committee Voted
The senate committee voted 10 to eight for the separate commission on the motion of Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia. The roll call was: For the new authority—Senators Glass, Bulkeley, Reynolds, McAdoo and Adams, Democrats; and Goldsborough, Townsend, Walcott, Carey and Kean, Republicans; against—Fletcher, Wagner, Coughlin, Byrnes, Bankhead, Democrats; and Norbeck, Couzens and Steiwer, Republicans.

LEGISLATURE ACTS

pressive taxation to raise the money. The people should not be required to submit to this alternative. It is my belief that if you exhibit a hesitation or unwillingness to accept this gravity, the offer is liable to be withdrawn any minute, after which the money will be expended in some other state.

"From the outset, I had anticipated no trouble in procuring this money from the government. The legislation of 1929 seemed to be all that was needed. The government has found the following objections: The present law requires the money upon the sale of the bonds to be deposited in the state treasury. There is no appropriation of the money. Nowhere is the state of Arkansas expressly authorized to accept a grant. Nearly $500,000 of the money to be obtained will be a gift to the state. Under the bill prepared by the government, these objections are fully met. The entire construction work will be under the supervision of the government authorities. I see no ground to object to this bill. If you make any substantial amendment to it, the money will not be forthcoming. In my judgment, no amendment should be made. There is every reason for the passage of the bill, and none against it. I suggest that you pass this bill without amendment, or defeat it, as you may determine. The issue is yours to determine."

Judge Hill Speaks
Following the governor's address, Judge Joseph M. Hill of Fort Smith, former chief justice of the Arkansas Supreme Court and chairman of the new state hospital plant, was invited to address the joint session at the request of Governor Futrell.

Judge Hill told of his conferences in Washington, D. C., with government officials relative to obtaining funds with which to complete the hospital. He said that the bill to be introduced in the present legislature was prepared by government attorneys, and that if it were passed funds would be available soon to resume construction work.

He pointed out the necessity for completion of the hospital, referring to hospital officials' statement to the effect that the present institution is overcrowded.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

How Parents 'Suggest' Illness to Children—Too Much Fussing Over Symptoms Is Cause

When dealing with children with symptoms of illness, leave out emotion and conversation as much as possible. This is Olive Roberts Barton's advice to mothers in this article in her series on modern Child Training.

Preparedness is not only sensible but necessary in every household where there are children. To have a thermometer at hand, and bandages, antiseptics, lotions and prescribed physics is sane and sensible. Home nursing consists of a great deal of common sense and promptness.

It is not always necessary to send for the doctor in case of small upsets or bumps. But it never is wise to guess. The "upset" may seem small to the parents but it may be the beginning of something serious.

The only way to tell if the child has a fever is by the thermometer. I think it is correct to say here, that in every case of rise in temperature the doctor should be consulted, particularly so if it lasts more than a few hours. A "feverish" cold should have professional attention at once. Or a rash. Or a "chill."

Transfer of Worries
A recurring pain should never be taken for granted, either. There should never be any guessing where a child's life is concerned, or jumping at conclusions, or home diagnosis.

However, there is one thing that should be mentioned in connection with the illness of children that not only connects up with health, but behavior.

It is this. All mothers worry if their children show signs of indisposition. It is natural to feel a fear, a foreboding, and think the worst when the usually bright eyes get dull, the appetite languishes, and there is a cough, a headache, or any symptom that indicates an interlude in health.

But as a result of this fear and the feeling of responsibility, it is quite common to imagine symptoms that do not actually exist. The next thing is to say to the child himself, "I'm afraid you're sick, darling. Are you sure you feel all right? Come and let me feel your head. Yes, it does feel hot. And you haven't eaten your beans."

Power of Suggestion

In a way it is a relief to our worry to pass it on to the child. Of course we may be justified and there may be real trouble. By a few questions we may discover some facts we should know. But dozens of times we go through this rignale needlessly. It becomes a habit and we have managed to tell Mary she is pale, Jean that she looks tired, and Jimmy that we're afraid he's studying too hard.

And by the very power of suggestion we can cause loss of appetite, a real lassitude and heaven knows what else. We can't "think" sickness on them, but by repeated suggestion we can and do produce a state of mind that fixes itself on their own feelings and eventually ends in self pity and self protection.

A child will absorb a certain idea that he isn't very strong. So he won't be strong. He follows the line of least resistance and takes life easy.

Mary will look as pale as she can when it's time to do dishes. Jean will be as tired as possible, and probably actually be so, and Jimmy is sure he's

Congress Attacks Secretive Income

Surtax Levied by Senate on Personal Holding Companies

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Striking at the "incorporated pocketbook" uncovered by the banking inquiry, the senate Monday approved without debate the finance committee's proposal to levy high surtaxes on the undistributed adjusted net income of personal holding companies.

Under the plan, the first $100,000 of such income would be taxed 30 per cent and all over that figure, 40 per cent. The House bill provided a flat rate of 35 per cent.

An amendment by Senator Reed, Republican Pennsylvania, exempting security companies from the tax was approved. Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, of the committee saying he was willing to let this matter go to conference with the House. Democratic leaders do not expect the bill to be passed until Wednesday or Thursday.

Indications that support for the Couzens one-year recovery income tax, adding 10 per cent to all individual payments, was not so strong as first indicated, appeared in corridor gossip.

Although Harrison had announced he would accept the proposal and let both sides said they would not support the tax unless it were conclusively shown that the estimated $55,000,000 in additional revenue was an essential need.

Jean A. Lussier of Springfield, Mass., went over Niagara Falls in a rubber ball on July 4, 1928.

Get at Reasons
The way to treat a suspected illness is by a brisk and business-like getting at reasons and trying to correct them, leaving emotion and conversation out of it as much as possible.

The more worried we are the less we should pass on our thoughts and fears to the small patient. Some of us are in a perpetual "blue funk," but the extra attention and sympathy centered on them becomes sweet to the soul. In time they will find plenty of symptoms to satisfy us.

The alert eye, the quiet tongue and action when the occasion calls for it is best. A mother does not need to go to extremes and think that every symptom out of the ordinary is imaginary on her part. There can be extremes both ways. But to fuss too much in either case does not help with cure.

Land-Stock Swap Defended by B.&L. But Test in Courts Looms as Norwood Rules It Is Illegal

LITTLE ROCK.—Upon his return to Little Rock Sunday State Bank Commissioner Marlon Wasson conceded that "under strict interpretation of the law, Attorney General Norwood probably is correct in holding that building and loan associations lack authority to exchange property for paid-up stock certificates, but I was advised by attorneys that Act 88 of 1933, passed to cope with the present economic emergency, permitted this procedure."

The attorney general's office issued an opinion Thursday to the effect that building and loan associations could not lawfully give real estate for stock, and officers of several associations have registered a vigorous protest against this interpretation of the law. Mr. Wasson said that he expected to meet Monday with the attorney general, building and loan associations' representatives and Oliver Phillips, deputy bank commissioner in charge of the building and loan division.

Act 88, under which Mr. Wasson said he had been informed by attorneys that he might permit exchanges of land for paid-up stock in building and loan associations, provides for voluntary liquidation of these associations, thus making it unnecessary for them to go into receivership, with court supervision.

"I do not suppose any one will question the assertion that to force a building and loan association into court receivership automatically depreciates the value of its stock and its assets, thus penalizing the investors," Mr. Wasson said. "I am afraid that if followed, will have the effect of forcing some associations into receivership."

"It probably will be best for all concerned to have the questions involved submitted to the courts through a test suit as soon as possible, so that liquidation will not be retarded any longer than is necessary."

"It is a well known fact that stockholders can't take assets for their stock, thereby getting a preference over other stockholders in a corporation, but at the same time it must be recognized that the so-called stockholder in a building and loan association is in fact an investor who does not regard himself in the same way that the stockholder in a bank or other business concern does."

Attorney General Norwood said he had received many complaints to the effect that brokers are purchasing paid-up stock certificates at large discounts and exchanging them for property which has been obtained by the associations by foreclosure proceedings.

He said if a borrowing stockholder is not allowed to offset what he has paid on the stock against the mortgage on his home, which the supreme court has held cannot be done, he knows of no law or justification for permitting an outsider who may have purchased a certificate at a discount to use it to pay for property taken from a borrowing stockholder under foreclosure proceedings.

Jury Completed for Bishop Cannon

11 Men and a Woman Try
Cleric on 1928 Campaign Fund

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Urging evocation of Bishop Cannon, Robert McNeill, his attorney, told the jury Tuesday that the Southern Methodist churchman met the legal requirements in reporting anti-Smith campaign contributions in 1928.

Admitting that Cannon placed some of the contributions in his personal bank account, McNeill said that within 24 or 48 hours he forwarded them to Ada Burroughs, anti-Smith treasurer, to be entered on the books.

Jury Completed.
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr., Monday went before a jury to answer the charge of the government that he "converted and appropriated to his own use" funds contributed toward the defeat of the 1928 presidential candidate, Alfred E. Smith.

Brought to trial with him in District of Columbia Supreme Court on the charge of violating the corrupt practices act, was Miss Ada Burroughs, who served as secretary of the Virginia Anti-Smith Committee that was headed by Bishop Cannon.

Eleven men and one woman were drawn from a single panel in a few hours of questioning that disclosed both politics and religion would be major factors in the trial.

The 1928 presidential campaign, in which Smith, then governor of New York, opposed Herbert Hoover, was spotlighted by discussions of Smith's stand for repeal of the prohibition law and his membership in the Roman Catholic church.

Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs were specifically charged with reporting only $17,300 of a $65,000 contribution by E. C. Jameson of New York.

The Rabbit: Reminiscences

Ten years ago the broken leg that has put Rabbit Maranville on the shelf would have been just a twisted leg... the little Boston second-sacker... always did have hard luck with catches, however... he would come crashing into them at home plate no matter how they blocked that dish or how big they were.

About 18 years ago the Rabbit, then arachnoid rounder, hurt his leg in a collision with a big Cincinnati catcher named Jacklisch... and had to wear crutches... but that night in his hotel room he made whoopee so whoopfully that the night watchman knocked on the door and ordered him to desist.

Evers Takes Rap

Rabbit climbed out of bed, opened the door suddenly and socked the watchman... then chased him down the hall... when the cops came, Rabbit was in bed... and pointed to the crucifix on the wall in his defense. He couldn't have been the man because he couldn't run.

So they arrested John Evers, who was rooming with the Rabbit, and clapped him into the chink. The Rabbit was always up to something with real fun in it... I remember an exhibition game with the Yankees... Rath slammed a terrific foul on a scorching line to right field... the Rabbit reached up and whirled his cap around, put a frightened look on his face and wavered on his legs...

On the next pitch the Babe swung at the empty air... the Rabbit lay down, his chin in his glove in an attitude of utter indolence... these things made the stands howl because the Rabbit could do them in a way no other man in baseball could copy.

After tagging a baserunner at second, sometimes the Rabbit would sit on him, assuming the well known pose of Rodin's Thinker... Now and then he could be very tough... one he tore into burly Heinie Zimmerman, who outweighed him 30 pounds, after Zim had knocked Evers for a row of loops coming into second.

He crawled between the legs of Umpire Hank O'Day once while on his way to second... and one of his stunts was playing peek-a-booo between the legs of Long George Kelly of the Giants... Once when Rabbit was in the Navy, two sailors held him out of a fifth-floor hotel window by the heels... and the Rabbit dared them to drop him.

His return from the Navy, a scene in Grand Central Station at New York must have been something... the Rabbit, with his sailor's canvas bag, a parrot, a monkey and three sheets in the wind... And the fountain in the hotel courtyard in St. Louis where the Rabbit, fully clothed, dived for fish... And Jack Scott chasing him down Broadway followed by a crowd shouting, "Stop Thief!"

They are suping the broken leg at St. Petersburg may stop him... that he never may play ball again... Maybe the doctors are right... but my bet is down that he does.

Strike Is Settled in Parts Factory

Detroit Motor Workers
Return to Jobs at 10%
Wage Hike

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—The strike of American Federation of Labor members at the plant of the Motor Products corporation was settled Monday night with the strikers agreeing to return to work Tuesday morning at a 10 per cent increase in wages. This strike involving 4,000 employees was considered the key to the main dispute in the motor labor field.

Announcement of the strike settlement was made by William Collins, American Federation of Labor leader. The agreement was reported ratified at a hastily called meeting of 500 strikers at Germania Hall.

Collins said that in addition to the wage increase, the settlement provides for protection of workers through recognition of seniority rights and for arbitration of disputes arising from piece rate payment.

The far flung effect of the Motor Products corporation strike which involved about 1,000 strikers and forced 3,500 out of work during the shutdown, made Monday night's development a major step in restoring peace in the industry. Many of Detroit's principal motor producing plants depended upon Motor Products corporation for parts and the shutdown Monday of the Hudson Motor company plants, laying off 18,000 men, was a direct result of that strike.

First indications Monday night were that the Hudson company's 18,000 men could return to work with necessary parts flowing again to their assembly lines by Wednesday morning and possibly Tuesday afternoon.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

Here is a Simple Rule For French Dressing

By SISTER MARY
NEA Service Staff Writer

The most exciting moment of any dinner is when the expert salad maker calls for a bowl and the ingredients of her favorite dressing and mixes her own right there at the table. Or sometimes father is the salad chef—it doesn't matter, as long as the mixer has a careful hand, a skillful eye for measurements and a keen sense of seasoning blends.

The simplest of all dressings is the French dressing, which is a combination of salad oil, acid and seasonings. However, there are innumerable variations.

Tomorrow's Menu

Breakfast: Baked delicious apples, cereal cooked with raisins, cream, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Creamed eggs and noodles spinach with Dutch sauce pumpernickel drop cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner: Clear soup, baked ham with pineapple, new potatoes in cream sauce, minted carrots and peas, head lettuce with Martinique dressing, vanilla ice cream with maple sauce, milk, coffee.

In addition to the basic rule, each one making a delight of a crisp head of lettuce or romaine.

The following rule for French dressing will please the average taste but the oil can be increased or decreased to suit individuals.

French Dressing

One-half teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper or paprika, 5 tablespoons salad oil, 2½ tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar.

Mix salt and pepper and add lemon juice. When salt is dissolved beat in oil with a fork or small Dover beater. Or the ingredients all can be placed in a French dressing bottle and shaken vigorously.

If the oil and acid are well chilled the dressing will thicken slightly as it emulsifies and will not separate as quickly.

Sugar and mustard are added as individual taste dictates. A drop of onion juice adds a distinct onion flavor or a mere "suspicion" may be given by rubbing the bowl in which the dressing is to be mixed with a slice of onion or a cut clove of garlic. Not more than one-half teaspoon powdered sugar or one-fourth teaspoon mustard should be used. These are mixed with the salt and pepper and dissolved in the acid.

The herb vinegars are invaluable as a means toward varying French dressings. Lime juice, grape fruit juice, orange juice and lemon juice can be used singly or in combination with cider vinegar or one of the herb vinegars.

Chiffonade Dressing

Chiffonade dressing is better if made with tarragon vinegar. One hard cooked egg finely minced, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 teaspoons minced sweet red pepper or pimento, 1 scant teaspoon grated onion and ½ teaspoon minced chives are added to the simple French dressing.

Martinique dressing has 1 tablespoon minced parsley and 1 tablespoon minced green pepper added to the rule.

For Parisian dressing, add 1 tablespoon minced sweet red pepper, 3 tablespoons minced green pepper, ½ tablespoon grated onion and 1 tablespoon minced parsley. A dash of mustard and ¼ teaspoon powdered sugar and added with the salt and pepper.

Roquefort cheese dressing adds 4 tablespoons crumbled Roquefort cheese to the original rule.

Minced olives, chili sauce, catsup, minced pickled beets, minced cucumber pickle, or pickles of any kind can be added to French dressing, changing it immensely. About 1 tablespoon of any one of the condiments should be added to one rule of the dressing.

Curry dressing adds ¼ teaspoon curry powder and ¼ teaspoon onion juice to the rule for French dressing.

which has been made with tarragon vinegar.

Don't forget the various excellent "table" sauces available on the market. A few drops of any of these sauces add piquancy to French dressing with very little effort on the cook's part.

We like to tell about the finer tobaccos in Luckies—the choicest Turkish and domestic, and only the mild, clean center leaves—they taste better—then "It's toasted"—for throat protection. But we're just as proud of the way Luckies are made. They're so round and firm, so free from loose ends. That's why Luckies always "keep in condition"—do not dry out. Luckies are always—in all ways—kind to your throat.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Modern permanent waves are a far cry from the old-fashioned types we used to get when they first were invented. In those days having a permanent meant hours of agony and, even then, no one could be sure just how successful the wave would be. But all the old-time difficulties have been eliminated. It takes not more than three hours for any permanent wave and the customer is sure that it will be flattering.

Probably the most revolutionary thing that has happened to the permanent waving industry within the last few years is a wave which requires no machine. The pads, containing certain chemicals depending on your hair, are dipped in a solution and then fastened around the rods on which your hair has been wrapped. The pads warm up the minute they are moistened with the solution. In ten minutes a pad has done its work and is starting to cool.

Incidentally, you can have one of these machineless permanent waves in your own home. The operator can come to you, bringing the preparations with her. And this is a grand idea for the invalid or one who can't get out to a beauty shop.
